Authority: AR 600-8-22, paragraph 7-14

Reason: For extraordinary heroism in action against an armed enemy. During the period 20 July 2011 to 31 July 2011, the Special Troops Battalion, 4th Brigade, 10th Mountain Division and the cited units displayed extraordinary heroism against an armed enemy in Chak-e Wardak, Afghanistan during Operation Enduring Freedom. The units planned and conducted extraordinary complex air assaults into an enemy safe haven resulting in the disruption of insurgent cells which had been attacking coalition forces throughout Wardak Province, Afghanistan. Despite a short planning window, the units rapidly integrated two new company teams into its organization while simultaneously planning the largest air assault in the cited units year in Afghanistan. They conducted detailed planning to penetrate an area where no International Security Assistance Forces had operated in known history. Multiple units attacked critical enemy nodes only ten days after receiving this challenging mission. During the next several days, units cleared six villages in the valley and repelled numerous attacks. Headquarters and Headquarters Company defended the vulnerable battalion command and control node against indirect and direct fire attacks which became increasingly accurate over this week-long fight. Alpha Company and Charlie Troop cleared villages throughout the valley and detained prisoners associated with attacks and weapons caches. Bravo Troop fought against waves of attacks attempting to access the valley through the choke point they were guarding. Throughout the Operation Dagger Fury, the units remained on the offensive, resting

In an outstanding performance duty, the units harnessed the power of its combined-arms team to kill enemy forces, disrupting their logistics and communications plus displayed tremendous dedication in accomplishing its combat mission. The extraordinary heroism and devotion to duty displayed by the members of the 4th Brigade Special Troops Battalion and the cited units are in keeping with the highest traditions of military service and reflect distinct credit upon the units, the Patriot Brigade, the 10th Mountain Division and the Armed Forces of the United States of America.
