“After ceaseless efforts to enter the Medical Reserve Corps of the United States Army who would not open its portals to women physicians I left St. Paul on September 22, 1918 to enter the French Army through the Women’s Overseas Hospital (W.O.H.) U.S.A. (under the auspices of the National American Women’s Suffragette Association) and appointed Ophthalmologist and assigned to a Gas Hospital (Number 3) at Cempuis, Oise, France.” ~ Dr. Nellie Barsness

Dr. Harry Simmonds

Ben Lake Cemetery – Pope County

“Somehow, I seemed to sense a sadness among the people. Many families felt the effects of war. Others were tortured by the severe influenza epidemic. Physicians and nurses were overworked, and the hospitals overcrowded. The possibility of more wars gave one a sense of insecurity. Parents looked at their small boys and wondered.”

~ Dr. Nellie Barsness
